

Are your clinical operations organized to optimize RBM?

Benefits

- Streamlined data to define site monitoring activities
- Realignment of roles and responsibilities to core needs
- Cost reduction by off-shoring non-core activities
- Potential integration of selected data monitoring activities with CDM activities for improved outcomes
- More effective analytics and relationship driven site management strategy

Transformation, not evolution, through improvements in People | Process | Technology

Current processes in clinical operations generate high cost but often add little value. Efficiency gains can be made in the following areas:

- R&D operations, including the real time availability of data for informed decision making
- Seamless and coordinated trial operations, including on-time patient recruitment and delivery of drugs to site
- Quality by design, to ensure processes and outcomes are “right first time”
- Compliance with ever changing regulations, including submissions expertise
- High cost of drug development and the need to improve efficiency in all clinical functional areas

TAKE Solutions provides an integrated approach leading to impactful results

- Therapeutic area experts provide relevant insights for integration of proactive quality planning steps into your SOPs, governance structure and study operations
- Industry leading technologists with RBM expertise to assess systems architecture and data flow, capabilities, data governance, challenges and quality roadmap
- Resource capacity and capability assessment tools that clarify gaps and options in relation to best practice RBM model

Deliverables

- Current core vs non-core capabilities and capacity
- Current systems map and data flow schema
- Process and governance gap analysis
- Standardized tools and templates for core activities
- Transformation roadmap with change management plan
- Case for change for senior management and use in building alignment of stakeholders
